

The aim of the project is to increase the ability and motivation of educators working with low-skilled, low-qualified adults to use digital learning strategies and tools in order to make learning more attractive, relevant and boost their professional and personal development.

The project milestones:

- ✓ Good Practice Compendium. A digital publication that encourages knowledge sharing and peer learning among Adult Education organizations and stakeholders by identifying and sharing leading innovative approaches in using digital teaching for adults, with a special focus on disadvantaged and marginalized adults and NEETs.
- ✓ DIGITAL Toolbox. An interactive publication featuring the 20 best digital learning resources, tested and tried by our team, with practical guidance on how to use them.
- ✓ DIGITAL Online Learning Course. A course that adult education teachers can use to strengthen their own digital skills.

Target groups of the project:

- ✓ Adult education teachers and trainers, especially those working in nonprofit organizations and colleges, who need to become more proficient in digital teaching so as to remain relevant in an ever-evolving education sector;
- ✓ Adult education organizations, who need the vision and tools to support educators in implementing innovative teaching strategies within their organizations.
- ✓ Adult education stakeholders, from the public and private organizations that policy and practice, who need strategies to boost the quality and attractiveness of adult education at scale.
